

SOCIETY

ALINE THOMPSON

A N insistent topic of conversation among one that has bestirred society from week to week has been the refusal of Waldemar Lind, violinist, to proceed with his solo at the society tea, given for the visiting nurses' association at the Hotel Portland, because a number of women insisted on chattering. The women were, no doubt, almost as much surprised that Mr. Lind walk out, as he was that they continued talking. Since it is a trifle "faux pas" for one to whisper and chatter at such affairs, the solo was quite appropriate, and well administered. Those who forgot their manners will probably not do so again. However, this breach of etiquette is not confined to Portland audiences alone, as Salem listeners repeatedly offend by similar discourteous attentions to renowned artists.

The step just taken by Mr. Lind gets rather an unexpected corroboration from no less than the famous and eminent musical personage Ignace Paderewski, piano virtuoso. It was in New York City recently when some of the audience left the recital hall, while Paderewski was playing. A New York paper says that "Paderewski turned around and gave them a glance which if their backs hadn't been turned, would have been calculated to make them quail with shame and confusion. When all was peaceful and quiet again, Paderewski repeated the outraged classic and continued with the programme.

He evidently forgave, for with true generosity he gave a long encore at the end, in order to show, perhaps, that the rudeness of a few did not condemn a whole audience which was manifestly ashamed of its few wayward members.

The "C. C." club composed of a group of young girls was charmingly entertained Saturday afternoon by Miss Maud McCoy at the home of her aunt, Mrs. J. W. Lewis, 118 Oak street.

Mrs. C. E. Bowen was hostess Thursday afternoon for a Kensington in honor of her mother, Mrs. George Caspell, of Silverton.

The affair was attended by about a dozen of Mrs. Bowen's friends, who were: Mrs. W. E. Thomas, Mrs. W. M. King, Mrs. R. F. Solomon, Mrs. Charles Siegmund, Mrs. Virgil Downing, Mrs. William Bowen, Mrs. E. F. Long, Mrs. Bess Uptograph, Mrs. George Waite and Miss Mary Waite.

Mrs. B. A. Shaver entertained a number of friends Saturday evening at a delightful surprise party as an attention to her husband on his birthday.

Got Life Terms For Burglarizing Saloon

San Francisco, Feb. 21.—George R. Murray, whose partner, James Williams, who participated in the holdup of the Greer saloon, February 1, and got life imprisonment Saturday, was himself sentenced to a like fate in San Quentin today by Superior Judge Griffin.

Attorney Alf Whelan, withdrew his motion that Murray be examined by a lunacy commission just before sentence was pronounced.

Murray is the prisoner who created a sensation in court Saturday when Williams was sentenced, leaping to his feet and begging the court to give him a similar sentence. He said he lured Williams into the crime. Both men were probationers.

HERE THEY ARE GIRLS HELP YOURSELVES

Young Men Describe Kind of Girls They Want, But May Not Get

GIRLS, this is leap year and time flies fast. Writers and educators in general agree that during leap year, the young lady is justified in discussing the many comforts of a home with gentlemen and to incidentally call attention to her many good traits that might help a young man through the troublesome journey of life.

In order to get expressions of opinions from the young men as to what kind of a girl would stand a chance of winning out, even in leap year, the Rev. F. T. Porter of the First Christian church invited the young men to write what they regarded as their ideal. These were read and commented on from the pulpit Sunday evening.

According to the young men of the church, the young lady who would interest them must fill the bill about as follows:

"My ideal of a young woman is one who does not stay out at night and one who is a good constant church worker."

"The girl that I marry must be a Christian, a good cook and a lover of dogs and children, and she must have a dimple and curly hair."

"She must be good looking and in the habit of speaking to all her acquaintances whether in high society or not. She must be careful where she goes at night and must not go to shows on Sunday night."

"She must be a Christian, must be economical, a good cook and able to darn socks."

"She must be neat and tidy and given a big place in her life although not so big a place that it will make her afraid of disfavor. My ideal young woman's music will not be thrown away on dances and balls."

"My ideal is one who thinks her mother at least as good if not better than anyone. One who likes fun, is free from slang, neat in dress, is not above honest employment if necessary to aid her in securing an education. She must seek the truth, but abhor gossip, must love many and hate no one."

"She should be righteous in heart, work and deed. Not necessarily good looking, if a good cook. Should possess judgment in economy."

"My ideal must be one of God's few, old, kind, sincere and thoughtful. Must be virtuous, jolly and considerate and must not be a flirt. She must not have a roving disposition; should be ready to help others and must be exactly my own height."

"My ideal must be a true Christian, a good housekeeper, must love children, must be a good neighbor but not a gossip. Must love her father, mother and brother."

"My ideal must have a cheerful disposition, not given to gossip, but seeing the best in others. One who would be willing to hear as well as forbear; not a fashion plate and street walker, but having a neat appearance and a love of her home; should be the possessor of a good education and last but not least, should be able to fry butter without scorching it."

The series of ideal persons will be continued two weeks. Next Sunday evening the women will be given a chance to write what constitutes the ideal husband, and on the following Sunday, the women will have their innings when they will be asked to write about the ideal husband. These services in which opportunity is given to express opinions, all of which are read from the pulpit, have attracted favorable attention. The church was crowded Sunday evening by young and old who were desirous of hearing candid opinions from the young men as to what constitutes an ideal young woman.

CONGRESS IS AT SEA OVER RAILROAD LANDS

Congressman Sinnott Insist Whole Matter Be Settled In One Bill

Washington, Feb. 22.—The Wilson bill, granting preference rights to applicants in the Oregon and California land grant cases, was termed "loaded" by Chairman Ferris of the house public lands committee. Wilson's bill is one of several dealing with the land cases on which hearings are now in progress. Constantine Smythe of the department of justice told the committee that this plan would promote fraudulent locations and would give valuable Oregon timber tracts, worth $20,000,000, to men having no right to recognition. Smythe also disapproved of the Hawley bill because that gives preference rights to persons whom the courts have declared hold no standing, and because it fails to pay taxes. At the same time, he objected to the Baker bill because it does not settle the whole question at once, but he did favor the Chamberlain bill.

The chief contention in the committee promises to be whether the government should stop with resuming title to the lands as the Baker resolution proposes or to decide what shall be done with them. Representative Baker contends that it is the first duty of congress to take over the title, leaving disposition of the holdings to future legislation. Other pending matters, he holds, will not allow congress time in which to thresh out the details, in the six months allowed by the courts for settling the situation.

The Oregon view, to be pressed by Representative Sinnott, is that the subject should be disposed of in one bill, instead of allowing the legislation to drag on inasmuch as, in the meantime, nearly $2,000,000 in taxes due to Oregon counties would remain unpaid. Oregon demands immediate relief for the tax situation.

CITY TO BUY AUTO FOR USE OF STREET REPAIR DEPARTMENT

Merchant's Patrol Put Under $1,000 Bonds and Police Supervision

The city council last night passed a resolution to purchase an auto for the street department and the matter was turned over to the street committee and Otto Wilson to investigate with power to act. Councilman Cook, chairman of the street committee, stated that an auto could be purchased for $443 and that it would cost about $12 more to build a box on it to carry tools and such other articles as were to be used in the business of the department. It was stated that the auto was badly needed as it was necessary to take one of the heavy teams off of the street work to haul tools to distant points and that it took more time going and coming than it did to perform the work in many instances.

The ordinance requiring the Merchant's patrolmen to pay an annual license fee of $10 per man and to put up a surety bond of $1000 was passed by a vote of 8 to 5. The ordinance requires that the merchant's patrolmen come under the supervision of the police department and report regularly and provides a fine of from $10 to $100 for violation of the provisions of the ordinance.

When the question of new sewers in Highland addition came up, Councilman Elliott moved that the council advertise for bids instead of putting them in by day labor under the supervision of the sewer committee but his motion did not come to a vote as his motion was not seconded, indicating that the council was in favor of the plan of providing labor for Salem people who needed it as in the past rather than to allow contractors to employ their own workmen.

The question of the erection of a retaining wall along Mill creek on the west side of Church street so that Church street from Mill to D streets might be paved and Fifth street paved to Highland avenue aroused considerable discussion. Councilman Cook of the street committee opposed the measure on the grounds that it would cost the city from $1,000 to $1,200 to put in the wall and that there was no indication that more than two or three blocks of paving would be put in. Councilman Urub, on behalf of the property owners in this district, promised that the paving would be laid along Fifth street to Highland avenue during this coming summer and said that only along Church street was a strip of paving which could not be put in without the retaining wall. It was finally decided to put the council on record as favoring the erection of the retaining wall if the property owners showed a disposition to pave any considerable extent.

Gardner and Keene, local jewelers, sent in a letter stating that they wished to erect a clock with an illuminated dial in front of their establishment at 356 State street and asked permission to connect the dial light with the cluster lights of the city. This matter was referred to the light committee with power to act.

The plans and specifications for the paving of South Church street from State street to Mission street was referred to the street committee along with the petition of the property owners for the city to fix the race so that it might be crossed by the paving on this street. It was decided to enter into a contract with John Graber, manager of the Salem band, for 25 concerts during the coming summer in Willson park. There will be at least 21 pieces in the band and the price must fall within the limitations of the appropriation in the budget. The regular payroll for the month of February was adopted.

A message of congratulation was sent by the council to Councilman Hudelson of the 4th ward, and wife, who yesterday celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home in this city.

The attention of the council was directed to a sign painted on one of the city's bridges advertising the fact that a certain mercantile firm is ready and willing to sell "Six pounds of Suet for 25 cents." Councilman Miller thought this was almost too many fish for a quarter and it was ordered that the street committee see to it that the sign be removed.

The petition of the Northwest Fruit Products company to move a wall was referred to the fire and water committee. The communication of the parent-teachers' association of the Lincoln school asking that an ordinance be drafted compelling actors to show down when passing schools was referred to the ordinance committee.

Bids were opened for 150 cords of second growth fir and the prices ranged from $3.15 to $3.49 per cord. Tax bids on 500 feet of fire hose ranged from 58 cents per foot to 1 per foot according to the brand. An objection to the ordinance making it unlawful for water, light or telephone company to cut the pavement to lay conduits was received and upon the statement that the present ordinance of the city amply protected the city's interest it was voted to lay the ordinance on the table.

It was decided to pay W. H. Dalrymple $125 for 10 barrels of bitumen. Mr. Dalrymple sent in a bill for $2 for section with the hauling of the bitumen to the city's storage sheds.

Councilman Cook was given permission to purchase a car load of Portland cement for use on the streets.

An invitation was extended by the Salem Floral society to the councilmen to be present at the next meeting of the society.
